Foreman Lucas Makes an Assault on Grand-Jury Emil Becker.

An Exciting Encounter in the Grand- Jury Room This Morning.

"LITTLE FOUR" OFFER THE COURT AN EXCUSE FOR THEIR CONDUCT.

Judge Normile After Receiving the Jury's Report Discharges Them for the Term.
—Full Text of "The Four's" Explanation of Their Action—The Attempt to Investigate Official Corruption Ends Farcically.

The first member of the Grand-jury who entered the room in the top of the four Courts this morning was John S. Moffit.
The rest straggled in one by one. At 10 o'clock all were there except Foreman J. B.
C. Lucas. Jurymen James Scullin, Howard Blossom and August Heman were in the room at that time while the eight were grouped together in the ante-chamber. They waited a while longer and Assistant Circuit Attorney William Zachritz came in and entered the room where the four sat.

"It's now 10:15," said Jurymen Emil A.
Becker, "and I am in favor of waiting until 10:30 every day and then adjourning." "I'm in favor of waiting for Mr. Lucas if it took all day," said Jurymen John S. Mor-fitt. "As I said yesterday, I think Mr. Lucas is too honorable a man to think his duty and he certainly will be here to-day." Foreman Lucas arrived fortunately and the jurymen all went inside. Then the foreman came out and told Mr. Zachritz to send for the witnesses in the case which had been pending when the disagreement occurred about the St. Louis Public Stock Exchange. Then the foreman went in again and Mr. Zachritz called Detectives Scully and Kelly and sent them down town to get the witnesses. As soon as Foreman Lucas re-entered the jury-room the members began to discuss the situation. Foreman Lucas seemed to be much excited and very angry about the criticism to which he had been subjected by the eight and the newspapers.

FOREMAN LUCAS ASSAULTS MR. BECKER.
He spoke respectfully of this, and the other members of the Grand-jury sat in their chairs at their desks and listened. Jurymen Becker was sitting on his chair, leaning easily on the side, when Foreman Lucas looked at him, and said that on a member of the Grand-jury had charged him with being unduly influenced to the suppression of the evidence whose disappearance had split the body. Then in an instant he seemed to lose control of himself, rushed at Jurymen Becker, seized him by the coat and gave him a violent blow. Jurymen Becker's chair tumbled over and he fell against the next chair. Foreman Lucas, still relating his grace on the coat, raised the umbrella which he held in his hand as he walked around the room, and seemed about to strike Jurymen Blossom and Moffit.
Interfered. Foreman Lucas released his hold of Jurymen Becker, and rushed excitedly to the side door into the office of Mr.
Zachritz, while other members of the jury ran out and got water for Jurymen Becker to bathe his face. Jurymen Harry E. Hayward came out of the room much agitated, and stood by an open window in the passage between the Grand-jury room and the ante-chamber, while friends bustled themselves restoring the disorder of the furniture and Jurymen Becker's clothing. As Jurymen Hayward returned Foreman Lucas came from Mr. Zachritz's office into the Grand-jury room, and offered Jurymen Becker an apology, which that gentleman, smiling with a sense of the indignity put upon him, refused to receive. The foreman evidently regretted profoundly that he had been betrayed into such a display of temper, and walked back and forth, finally for the second time offering the apology from the door of Mr. Zachritz's office.

"I refuse to receive it," said Jurymen Becker. "I consider this an assault to kill, sir, and an apology is not satisfactory."

FOREMAN LUCAS AGAIN RETREATED INTO MR.
ZACHRITZ'S OFFICE. Jurymen Moffit and Bag-gott went over to Jurymen Becker and tried to persuade him to receive the apology. At last they got him out of his chair and into the other room, when he said:

"I receive your apology, sir, on account of my friends in the jury-room, who desire me to do it."

All this happened without the slightest sound reaching those who waited in the ante-chamber. Nothing but the Jurymen running out for water looked unusual, and that was thought to be the only one of the jurors wanted to wish his hands.

When the jury went into service Mr.
Zachritz said that he had one more case he wanted to bring before them. The eight doubted the sincerity of this statement, and a motion was offered to go down to Judge Normile and ask to be discharged. This was carried by a vote of 4 to 4. A resolution of which was offered to Foreman Lucas for efficient service and one to Jurymen James E. Gatewood, the Secretary, in accordance with the formal custom of Grand-juries, but contrary to precedent, no body proposed such a resolution for Zachritz. Then Foreman Lucas got up and said that he hoped it would be understood that he had no personal feeling whatever in the disagreement that had occurred. Jurymen Moffit followed him with a like disclaimer of animosity. The two jurors were thrown open and the twelve filed down stairs into the Criminal Court room where Judge Normile was trying a case. They took seats in the jury box, the eight sitting together near the bench, and the four having seats together at the other end of the room. As soon as Judge Normile saw them coming he stopped the case he was trying and got his little volume of the statutes ready. When they had all taken their seats he rose and advancing towards the side of the bench near the Grand-jurors said:

"Gentlemen, I wish to place before you that section of the statutes describing the forms of intercourse between the Grand-jury and the court." The judge then read:

Grand-jury shall be presented by their foreman, in the room in the top of the four Courts, and shall be there until they are discharged and remain as records of such cases.

"This," said the Judge, closing the book, "is the only rule that I have followed—the only rule by which I have conducted the Grand-jury and the court is possible. Have you gentlemen any objection to this?"

FOREMAN LUCAS LEFT HIS SEAT AND ADVANCED TOWARDS THE BENCH. "Your Honor," said he, extending a paper to the Judge, "this is a minority report, which we beg you will hear, as you heard the report of the majority." Judge Normile took the paper, and then hesitated. "A report of the minority?" he inquired.

"Yes, sir," said the foreman. "As you read the other, I think you ought to read this."

"None of these papers belong to the file of the court," said the Judge hastily. "I can't receive a majority and minority report. I can't receive either of them. I can't place either of them on the file. I read the other merely to ascertain what it meant; what its contents were, and as soon as I ascertained it was a request to be discharged I handed it back. I can't place it on the file. I can't place either on the file."

"Your Honor, I'd like you to read that," said Foreman Lucas. "I've handed you a question, and I want you to answer it. The Prosecuting Attorney, that correspond there, and we would like to have it read."

Judge Normile read from the papers as follows:

to give his statement about the assault on him by Foreman Lucas.

The affair happened before the Grand-jury went into service and said he, "I believe I can speak of it without violating my oath as a juror. I am a juror, and I am foreman Mr. Lucas, suddenly jumped up one day and went out, leaving us alone. I went after him to the ante-chamber, and the Assistant Circuit Attorney. He had closed the door, and I threw it open and said: 'Mr.
Lucas, what does this mean? How can you, the foreman, leave our deliberations absolutely like this?' He said in an excited way that some of the members of the Grand-jury charged him of being in a conspiracy with the Assistant Circuit Attorney to who he said he indicted, and he considered it necessary.
This morning I was leaning back in my chair expecting the members of the Grand-jury to talk about this same thing, and said he had lived in St. Louis for forty years, and had seen a great deal of the world, and he said suddenly: 'There is the man' and he came and said to me: 'I was prepared, and he knocked me down. I would have hit him with my elbow striking a spittoon and it broke. He apologized to me afterwards, and said: 'I am sorry, but I was so angry. I came to me and said: 'Oh, Becker, you ought to go to the court and see what the members of the Grand-jury have said about this same thing, and said he had lived in St. Louis for forty years, and had

RENAISSANCE CLUB.

Teeth without plates, 212 Olive street.

Upholstery and Carpet Men Form an Association.

NEW YORK, July 28.—For a year past the large carpet and upholstery dealers of the country have been considering the advisability of forming a national club for the purpose of creating a more fraternal feeling in the trade. Two meetings of representatives of the dealers were held, one at Coney Island and the other in this city. The outcome was the formation of the Renaissance club of the United States, which was on Wednesday incorporated at Albany.

The club, as its name indicates, is a revolution in the carpet and upholstery trade of the country. While the trade in the United States does not exceed $40,000,000 worth of business in a year, the idea of a union of the dealers has never before been broached. The club-house in this city is on one of the side streets, between Fourteenth and thirty-fourth streets and Fifth avenue. It will be the headquarters for carpet and upholstery men coming to this city on business. The club has 100 charter members, who command large wealth.

Wm. E. Georgia, of J. Kennard & Sons of St. Louis has been chosen President of the club. The club-house will be opened this fall.

KENNEDY'S MOTIVE.

Theory Concerning the Double Tragedy at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 28.—E. D. Kane, brother of the broker murdered by Ronald Kennedy, who afterward committed suicide, came home yesterday. Speaking of the tragedy he said: "I fail to understand what motive could have induced Kennedy to take the life of my brother. He has not had any business with Kennedy for more than two years, although he repeatedly gave us orders to buy Pennsylvania railroad stocks. He was very fortunate at one time and made about $20,000. In the November panic a decline in stocks amounted to just about what he had made. Kennedy was continually giving large orders to buy stocks, and we declined to accept them on the ground that he was asking us to take too much. It is quite possible that Kennedy gave my brother an order and upon our refusal to execute it Kennedy took his life." Mr. Kane said further that he had heard Kennedy say he had orders in other offices on the street in which he was carrying Atchison stocks.

His Sentence Lightened.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 28.—William Kittell, who was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment for stealing cloth from the Kahn Tailoring Co., of which he was a member, was granted a new trial yesterday. He immediately pleaded guilty to the charge against him and was sentenced to five years' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $1. A few days ago, on a promise that his punishment would be lightened if he pleaded guilty, he made a full confession and said that he systematically robbed the store for years and that the amount of his stealings would reach $10,000. He also told of two or three places where he now had some of the goods, so that the Kahn might get them.

In the confusion, Seymour and Ed Murphy, a friend of Beard's, were arrested.

TO BE SHAKEN UP.

Von der Ahe Contemplating a Number of Changes in the Browns.

EWING, MULVEY, WOOD AND MANNING MAY ALL BE SIGNED.

A New Pitcher Found Who Promises to Be a Valuable Acquisition to the Team.

Results at East Side and South Side Parks—Track Talk—General Sporting News.

President Von der Ahe is reported to have stated in a letter to his son that the Browns have been playing good ball, but bad luck and the umpire, as a rule, have been against them. While there may be some truth in this, the fact remains that they have not been winning, and nothing but that kind of ball will attract big crowds at Sportsman's Park. No one, however, knows the fact better than President Von der Ahe, and according to reliable advice, a general shaking up in the players will occur when the club returns home on Aug. 4. Hawke, the new pitcher who did such good work yesterday against Baltimore's sluggers, will be released. Fitcher Breitenstein, who will be released. Joe Mulvey, the third baseman of last season's Athletic Club, and who was with Philadelphia up to a short time ago, will, in all probability, replace Pinkney at third. Mulvey was taken sick during the early part of the season and in consequence has not been able to play the game he can when in condition. During his absence from the Phillies, Catcher Chas. Gooden third and made such a good showing that Manager Wright concluded to retain him and release Mulvey to Washington. Robinson, however, has been covering third so well for the Senators, that Manager Wright decided he did not need Mulvey and President Von der Ahe opened up negotiations with him. Chris is also said to be dickering with old George Wood, the once famous Philadelphia outfielder, who was released by Pittsburgh recently. It is not known where Wood will be played should he be secured. Jimmy Manning, who has been captaining and covering second base for the Kansas City Western Association team for several years past, is also said to have received an offer from St. Louis. Should Manning be secured he will be used as a general utility player. He was with the Detroit champions for several years in this capacity, and will, providing he can put up the game he did in those days, make a valuable addition to the Browns. The most important move in the management of the club, which will take place should Buck Ewing come here, "Buck" is in bad odor with the New York management. They have notified him that unless he resumes catching his release will be given him. As Ewing himself admitted he is catching dandruff, he will soon be no longer classed as a Giant. While in New York last week President Von der Ahe is said to have made Ewing a splendid offer to captain, manage and play anywhere he chose on the Browns. "Buck" is said to have taken this offer under consideration and is to decide definitely when released by New York. Ewing covered second for New York last season on several occasions and more than held his own. This season he has been playing first exclusively. Should Manning, Mulvey and Ewing all be signed, it can be relied upon that several of the present members of the team besides Breitenstein will be released.

YESTERDAY'S GAMES.

Hawke, a young amateur pitcher, who resides at Wilmington, Del., called on President Von der Ahe yesterday morning while the Browns were practicing at the Washington grounds and asked to be given a trial. He practiced with Billy Moran, who recommended his work, and it was decided to let him go in against the Orioles. The game showed what kind of work he did. Throughout the nine innings he pitched with excellent judgment. In addition to which he held his position in the field and made one of the five hits secured off Vickers. The result, of course, was a victory for Von der Ahe's side.

Successful Gun Tests at the Bethlehem Proving Grounds.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., July 28.—The first firing on the Bethlehem Iron Company's new proving grounds was done yesterday. The first day's shoot was to obtain the velocity of an eight-inch gun. A projectile weighing 20 pounds was fired with an eighty-one pound charge of hexagonal prismatic powder. The ball flew through the screens connected by electricity with instruments from whose indicators a velocity of 1,702 feet a second was computed. As the standard for charge and distance is 1,700 feet, but one round was necessary. The test was one of the most satisfactory in the history of modern ordnance. Twelve-inch breech-loading armor plate will be tested with the same gun on Saturday.

Lieut. G. N. Whistler of the Fifth United States Artillery made three tests of a cylinder gun, the first of which was a cylinder gun at Birdboro yesterday. The first test showed a pressure of 40,176; the second, 35,200; and the third, 30,000 pounds of pressure to the square inch. The first charge consisted of 24 and the second of 34 pounds of powder.
